The Moulin d'Andé...

The courtyard

Built at the end of the 12th Century straddling a branch of the River Seine, in the heart of landscapes dear to the impressionists, the Moulin d'Andé, a listed monument, is also a Cultural Encounter Centre.

Only 15 centres in France have been granted the label "Cultural Encounter Centre", a label of excellence, conferred by the French Ministry of Culture. All of these prestigious cultural centres are established in a monument presenting a unique historical or architectural character. Their mission is to implement a compelling artistic and cultural project. Thus, the Moulin d'Andé promotes, besides intense musical activities, a Centre for Film Writing called the Ceci (Centre des Écritures Cinématographiques).

The Moulin d'Andé also hosts meetings, workshops, study days, or long-term residential seminars and, of course, welcomes all those tourists eager for cultural and prestigious sites (see for further details www.moulinande.asso.fr).

In the framework of a cultural trip to Normandy,

* come and visit the last example of a "hanging" water mill which has a vertical wheel suspended under the grinding room, with its internal and external machinery almost intact

* come have dinner at the Moulin - from 6 p.m. on and on the waterfront if the weather permits - in a warm and friendly atmosphere and discover Normandy's traditional cuisine.

* come attend a concert of classical music, of jazz or world music in one of the meeting rooms of the Moulin or at the Theatre, which has a breathtaking view over the valley of the River Seine.
